

volume by Kaulicke often deliberately avoids duplication of the discussions by Rowe. Thus the two should be used in tandem to obtain the clearest picture of the contributions of Uhle to the development of Americanist archaeology.

References

Browman, David L.

1999 "Max Uhle and the Museo de Historia Nacional - Lima," Bulletin of the History of Archaeology, 9(1):7-9.

Hampe Martínez, Teodoro

1998 "Max Uhle y los orígenes de Museo de Historia Nacional (Lima, 1906-1911)", Revista Andina, 31: 161-186.

Rowe, John Howland

1954 Max Uhle, 1856-1944: A Memoir of the Father of Peruvian Archaeology, University of California Publications in American Archaeology and Ethnology, Vol. 46 No. 1. Berkeley University of California Press.

VI. Activities of Various Academic Gatherings Related to the History of Archaeology

None reported.

DOI: <http://dx.doi.org/10.5334/bha.11110>

VII. Resources for the History of Archaeology

The Sylvanus G. Morley diary entry of Tuesday, 5 April 1932 has been published in the Winter 2001 issue (II[1]:25 of the Pari Journal (a quarterly publication of the Pre-Columbian Art Research Institute).

The Sylvanus G. Morley diary entry of Tuesday, 6-7 April 1932 has been published in the Winter 2001 issue (II[2]:16-19 of the Pari Journal (a quarterly publication of the Pre-Columbian Art Research Institute).

Pamela Smith reports that a new oral history archive of oral historical evidence for the history of archaeology will soon be established at the Society of Antiquaries in London. This will be the first archive in Britain designated specifically to preserve audio and video recordings and transcriptions. During Ms. Smith's Ph.D research, she conducted over 200 interviews with prominent, elderly archaeologists. This oral historical work was funded by the Wenner-Gren Foundation for Anthropological Research. Together these tapes and paper transcripts comprise a valuable historical resource. However, these interviews are not available to the public. Fortunately, Dai Morgan Evans, the General Secretary to the Society of Antiquaries, has suggested that this material be housed in the Society's library. It is hoped that such an Archive, once fully publicized, will attract additional contributions and will promote oral history as a method for conserving important life memories. If further information is desired about this archive, please contact Pamela Smith at PamelaJaneP@aol.com.